PERSONAL STATEMENT

I am a former social sciences enthusiast, who fell in love with educational software product development. My grounded prior experience in academic, educational and sales sectors, my communication and language skills allowed me to boost my grasp on IT in a short period of time. I am currently interested in a job position, which would provide me the opportunity to further develop in the field of software product management and marketing.

It is important for me to work for the public good.

It is also important for me to face challenging long-term goals.
